Call for LA-CCI Task Force members

LA-CCI is an acronym for the Latin American (LA) Conference on Computational Intelligence (CI), which currently includes correspondents in Argentina, Bolivia, Brazil, Chile, Colombia, Ecuador, Mexico, Peru, Uruguay, and Venezuela. Sound research and active groups work in CI in these countries, eager to develop the area and exchange experiences/personnel. As well as the Conference Series, LA-CCI is one of the deeds of the IEEE CIS LA-CCI Task Force (TF) for encouraging research groups of these participating countries to team up around this exciting topic of CI.

The organization team would like to encourage the participation of established scientists, young researchers, and advanced students, not limited to Latin American countries. It is important to note that Latin American countries organize our conference but aim at the international scientific community. Finally, it is always worth to state our main goals, namely:

- i) To be a notch scientific forum in Latin America;
- ii) To be a regional hub of CI practitioners and professionals;
- iii) To be a privileged showcase of CI and industry;
- iv) To be a springboard for students;
- v) To publicize CI research going on within LA-CCI countries;
- vi) To encourage CI research links to LA-CCI countries;
- vii) To foster academic mobility in LA-CCI countries and beyond, and;
- viii) To promote Science & Culture in Latin America

Overall, the objective of the LA-CCI series is to provide a high-level international stage and forum for scientists, researchers, engineers, and educators to disseminate their latest research results and exchange views of the future research directions on Neural & Learning Systems, Fuzzy & Stochastic Modeling, Evolutionary & Swarm Computation, and their related applications. More recently, the special topic on CI technology's Ethical, Social, and Environmental implications.

This call aims to invite LA IEEE CIS members to participate in this TF and support CI activities in the region. Two representatives from each LA country is recommended to be part of the team, trying to warranty these requirements:

- To participate in the LA-CCI meetings at least once virtually per month
- To be a connection between the Steering Committee (LA-CI Networks) and the CI local community in each country
- To foster the CI community to participate in the LA-CCI activities
- To be part of the organization and divulgation of the LACCI conference year by year

Application process

Send an email to dorjuela@ieee.org with a copy to cis@ieee.org with following documents:

- Curriculum vitae (CV) showing experience in the CI field
- A motivation letter to get involved in the LA-CCI activities

Deadline: September 15th, 2023
